Health Care For All New York: Building Quality, Affordable Health Care for ALL New Yorkers

New York's Prior Approval law protects consumers

Thanks to a strong state law, New York's Department of Financial Services (DFS) can reduce rate increases proposed by health insurers if they find the proposed rate is "unreasonable," "excessive" or "unfairly discriminatory." Under the 2010 Prior Approval law, DFS may review rates in the individual and small group (2-100 employees) markets. Most proposed rate increases will go into effect on January 1, 2018.

DFS considers many factors when deciding whether to approve a rate proposal, including the costs of medical care and prescription drugs and the insurer's past claims experience and financial condition.

Consumers, consumer groups, and small businesses can submit comments to challenge rate proposals that they believe are too high, but the time period to comment is extremely short. Comments must be submitted within thirty days after the insurer's filing is posted on the DFS website.

The rate increases began to be posted in June. Check the DFS website (myportal.dfs.ny.gov/web/prior-approval/rate-applications-by-company) to get the exact deadline for your own health insurers..

You can make a difference!

Last year, many consumers were faced with double-digit rate increase proposals, but consumers weighed in and the average rate increases were significantly smaller.

The rate reductions imposed by DFS last year saved policyholders in New York an estimated $302 million!

This year, the average for rate increases is 17% on the individual market and 12% on the small group market. Increases like these can seriously cut into family budgets and small business owners' ability to provide health care for their employees.

Consumers, consumer groups, and small businesses can submit comments to reduce health insurance rate increase proposals.

You Can Weigh in on Next Year's Health Insurance Premiums!

What You Can Do:

1. Write a comment challenging your rate increase. You can do this online, through the DFS web page, or you can send it in by regular mail. The DFS web page shows you how. To comment online:
  - Go to <https://myportal.dfs.ny.gov/web/prior-approval/submit-a-comment> and follow the instructions on the web page.
2. Get others to submit comments.
3. Get the word out on rate review and the need to act by writing a letter to the editor or through social media.

What Your Comments Should Say:

Your comments don't need to be long or complicated. DFS wants to know how a premium increase would affect your life. A short explanation is fine. You may want to include:

- The name of your insurance company and plan
- How a premium increase would affect you and those covered by your plan
- What changes you would have to make to afford the insurance
- Whether you are likely to keep health insurance if the increase goes through
